

National Pathology Week

3–9 November 2008

Where's my biopsy result?

A FREE event organised by The Royal College of Pathologists

What happens to a surgical specimen once it's been removed from a patient? It goes to the lab and a result appears several days later. But what happens to it there and why does it take so long?

This is an opportunity to see what happens and have a go at making slides yourself. By learning how specimens are processed you'll be better at interpreting the reports that are produced. You could probably teach your fellow students a thing or two!

6 November 2008, 2–5pm
The Wellcome Museum of Anatomy and Pathology at
The Royal College of Surgeons

For further information or to book a place, please contact
Ruth Semple, Project Manager
The Royal College of Pathologists
ruth.semple@rcpath.org
020 7451 6753

The Royal College of Pathologists
Pathology: the science behind the cure

sponsored by

SIEMENS