

National Pathology Week

2–8 November 2009

Event title	The Decision maker behind the Surgeons Mask - What Pathologists Really Do
Venue	Queens University of Belfast
Target audience	General public
Objectives	To explain the role of pathology, and why its important
Age range	All inclusive
How was the event advertised?	Flyers, posters sent to local GP surgeries, posters around the university, local press contacted Advertised round the BMS degree courses in two local universities
Number attending	100
Booking required?	No
Length of event	1 hour 45 min
Refreshments provided?	No
Equipment needed	Data projector and lecture theatre
People needed	Guest speaker
Printed material used	No
Room set up	Lecture theatre
Event programme	Guest speaker to talk about pathology and why he became one, the role of pathology etc followed by Q&A
Possible variations
What did the audience particularly like?
What surprised the audience?
What else would the audience have liked?
How much preparation was involved?	This event was sponsored by the Pathological Society, liaising with them
Any other comments?	Difficult to get much media interest
Images
For more information please contact	Peter Hall at peter.hall@qub.ac.uk