

Ovum

Ovum

This is the medical term for the egg, the female cell that contains half the genetic information needed to make a baby. The ovum is fertilised by a sperm, the male sex cell containing the other half of the information. Clinical Embryologists are pathology scientists specialising in assisted conception such as IVF, helping couples who can't conceive naturally.

Our Events

- NPY Event Registration Form
- Events by Month
- Events by location
- Promotional Materials Request Form
- Pathology in Focus: Photography Competition

