

Y chromosome

Y chromosome

We all have two sex chromosomes, the genetic material that determines whether we're male or female. Men have an X and a Y chromosome (XY), women have two X chromosomes (XX). Many diseases have genetic causes. Geneticists are pathologists who specialise in genetic disease. They can detect some diseases that run in families and predict who will be affected.

Our Events

- NPY Event Registration Form
- Events by Month
- Events by location
- Promotional Materials Request Form
- Pathology in Focus: Photography Competition

©2012 National Pathology Week