

College Celebrates 50th Anniversary

As part of the Royal College of Pathologists' 50th Anniversary the Fifty Objects Project has been Launched

As part of the celebrations of the Royal College of Pathologists' 50th anniversary fellows were asked to nominate objects that they believe have changed the practice of pathology. The fifty most popular objects, covering all nineteen pathology specialties, were selected and one will be revealed each week during 2012. A booklet containing all the objects will be sent to all fellows in 2012 to mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the College.

Today sees the launch of the first object, the light microscope. To find out more about the project and see the objects as they are released, visit the Royal College of Pathologists website.
